

M.S. in GLOBAL COMMERCE vs. MBA

Average Age: 23

The M.S. in Global Commerce is designed for recent graduates in business with less than two years of work experience.

The class of 60 features more than 15 nationalities.

Jumpstart Your Career

The M.S. in Global Commerce provides a specialization in global strategic management. Many students are interested in leveraging their business major with a global alumni network.

< 1 Year

The M.S. in Global Commerce is an accelerated 10-month program spanning three countries: the U.S., China, and Spain.

Tuition and housing fees are roughly $45K plus books and supplies.

Specialize in Global Strategic Management

Students from around the world have an unparalleled experience living and studying together at three top-ranked universities on three continents. A group thesis is included.

Case Studies + Teamwork

The M.S. in Global Commerce features integrated teaching using case studies and teambuilding. Companies partner with students in the classroom and during on-site visits in all three locations.

Entry-Level

Graduates accept entry-level jobs in consulting, finance, management, and marketing. With two master's degrees and three school networks, they are well-positioned for a global career.

Profile

ROI

Time & Cost

Coursework

Format

Outcome

Average Age: 27

Most MBA programs are geared toward working professionals with a minimum of 2 years of work experience.

Pivot Your Career

The MBA offers working professionals the opportunity to enhance their current position or change career direction. They want to boost their salary, grow their network, and increase job security.

2 Years

According to the Graduate Management Admission Council, a top two-year MBA can exceed $300K when factoring in tuition, living expenses, relocation, and two years of lost earnings.

Foundation with Electives

MBA programs dedicate the first year to general business foundation courses, followed by a second year of electives.

Electives could also include a short global component or course.

Case Studies + Teamwork

MBA programs use a variety of teaching methods, including case studies and teambuilding while leveraging students' work and professional experience.

Mid-Level

MBA graduates accept mid-level management positions in a variety of industries. The two-year general management degree is often used to pivot from one industry to another.